County AAA officers all over Alabama are now receiving applications from dairymen and farmers for dairy feed subsidy payments.

At present our armed forces are getting 13 per cent of 1943's food; civilians, 75 per cent; Lend-Lease, 10 per cent; friendly neighbors, 2 per cent.

Health Department Asks

Brill's Fever Victims For

Aid In Rat Control Project

Those of you who have had Brill's fever in Coffee County now have a chance to get revenge on the rats and fleas whose kind made you sick.

If you have had Brill's fever, fill in the form below and mail it to the Coffee County Health Department, Elba, Alabama. We need to know where you lived when you were taken ill and the places where you were especially exposed to rats.

Tell your neighbors who may not receive this paper and write additional forms for other members of the family who have suffered from this preventable disease.

One of the plans for killing rats in the county-wide Brill's Control Program is to find where the rats are most numerous and most infected. These areas will then receive special attention.

These areas are to be located in three ways: (1) All homes where Brill's cases have occurred. (2) Rats will be caught alive and their blood tested to find infected rats. (3) Fleas will be caught and tested in Washington.

Yes, I have had Brill's and want to help keep others from suffering the way I did.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

On Sunday, Nov. 14th, a large number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. L. G. Davis (better known as Green), near Opp, for the purpose of celebrating his 73d birthday.

Mr. Davis was fortunate in having with him all of his children, namely: Lee, Sam, Claude, Matthew and Ben, of Elba, Route 3; Gardie, A. C., Roy, Beria, Fannie and Mrs. Luminous Daughtry, of Opp, Route 2. Twenty-eight of his 31 grandchildren were present. The other three are in the armed forces. His five great-grandchildren were also present, besides a large number of other relatives and friends.

The morning was spent in talking and greeting relatives and friends. At the noon hour a very tempting meal was spread on a table in the yard, consisting of barbecue and a lot of other good eats, iced tea and coffee.

In the afternoon we had two interesting speeches by Judge J. A. Garley and Mr. W. H. Maddox. We also had a short talk by Mr. Davis, the honoree.

Several songs were sung from the Sacred Harp book by members of the family and a few others.

The honoree received a number of useful gifts which he seemed to appreciate very much.

We all hope to be with Mr. Davis on many more occasions like this one. A Friend.

WE WANT to salute the people of this community on their fine response to the appeal for more pulpwood. Every boy in the service will be proud of the way the home folks are backing him up.

This present pulpwood drive is bringing results. It has brought in pulpwood from people who never cut any before. It has been a big help toward meeting the dangerous shortage that threatens our war effort.

The danger is far from over. It will take millions and millions of cords to win the war. There will never be enough to go around—not as long as the shooting lasts.

Housing your hens in a comfortable, sanitary, rat-proof concrete poultry house is a good way to insure higher egg production. When built of concrete a poultry house will last a lifetime and its maintenance cost will be practically the last.

Long-lasting concrete is the sturdy material for feeding floors, dairy barn floors, milk houses, foundations, grain storage, manure pits, water tanks—improvements that help you raise more eggs profitably.

Next Year Will Be Different

NEXT year will be different. Not only the weather, and markets, and the needs of the country. Our jobs will be different, too. Because next year we're going to do those jobs differently—and we hope better!

We, whose job is producing goods and services, have been making resolutions like this for years. And we've been keeping them! For in our kind of business, you either keep on finding better ways of doing things, or you go backward! And if enough people do that, the thing we call progress begins down.

That's why farmers keep on trying new seeds, and fertilizers, and machines, and strains of stock. That's the reason industry carries on research—another name for finding better ways of doing things, and better ways to do things. Because most of us have been doing this for years, America has had the highest standard of living in the world. And it's the reason, too, that American production is doing so much today to bring victory.

After the war, America is going to need more than ever men with the courage and enterprise to invest time, money, and hard work in the search for better things. And if America's producers understand each other, and each other's problems, we'll be able to do these all-important jobs better. General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

LET US SAY "THANK YOU"

By Ruth Taylor

Most of us were brought up in homes where the fine old custom of saying Grace prevailed and we learned to daily express our gratitude to the Giver of all Gifts. "In our home we say Grace!" meant something very real and fine.

Saying Grace is a custom that should be part of our lives today, for we live in a world where the road is rough and the toll greater than we can yet conceive, we know now that victory lies ahead.

What are we thankful for this Thanksgiving Day? We are thankful that we have learned much in the two years since war came upon us. We have lost much, but we have learned what things are essential and what we can do without. External things can never again have as vital a meaning to us.

We are thankful that we have in the misery of these days learned that the ideals of which we boasted on holidays and at campaign times are living things for which we are willing to sacrifice.

We are thankful that we have learned how to spend less time thinking of money and more time concentrating on our duties to others and more time enjoying those mercies we already possess.

We are thankful that we have learned how to cooperate with our neighbors and how to put aside old differences and to work with our fellow men, finding in the stress of emergency that the divisions that divide us are less important than the things we have in common and that unite us.

We are thankful that we have learned the inner satisfaction in work and sacrifice and in being on the side of justice and mercy.

We are thankful that we have learned the privilege of living in the greatest hour of history, that we can in that hour be of service to our brothers everywhere, whatever their class, creed or color.

As Chesterton so aptly said, "The way to love anything is to realize that it might be lost." We have learned what we really love—and for that knowledge, we are not yet too late to keep it, we are thankful!

For in our kind of business, you either keep on finding better ways of doing things, or you go backward! And if enough people do that, the thing we call progress begins down.

That's why farmers keep on trying new seeds, and fertilizers, and machines, and strains of stock. That's the reason industry carries on research—another name for finding better ways of doing things, and better ways to do things. Because most of us have been doing this for years, America has had the highest standard of living in the world. And it's the reason, too, that American production is doing so much today to bring victory.

After the war, America is going to need more than ever men with the courage and enterprise to invest time, money, and hard work in the search for better things. And if America's producers understand each other, and each other's problems, we'll be able to do these all-important jobs better. General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

WHITE CHRISTMAS FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 20.—Scores of children at the Methodist Children's Home at Selma, supported by the North Alabama Conference and the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Church, are again to be remembered and their needs for 1944 provided for thru a "White Christmas" campaign to culminate in all churches of Alabama and West Florida on Sunday, December 19.

The Board of Directors of this Home, which includes leaders of Methodism in both conferences, has sent out a call to all Methodists of the state to respond liberally with contributions for the care of the boys and girls in this Home, all of whom are either full orphans or part orphans. And in this connection it is pointed out that the most tragic group of children here is the one that comes from the broken home. Children from these homes feel that no one in the world wants them.

R. E. Cooper, of Birmingham, chairman of the board, and Dr. S. O. Kimbrough, of Anniston, vice chairman, in their call for this "White Christmas" campaign point out that many improvements are needed, including furniture for the boys' cottages. They also call attention to the fact that operating expenses are almost double what they were five years ago, and declare that the Methodist Children's Home must pull out from its place on the bottom of the list among church supported Homes, and become an institution of which the Methodists of Alabama will be proud.

Other officers of the Home joining in this appeal with the directors include Mrs. Ed H. Hobbs, Selma, secretary; R. N. Burson, Selma, treasurer, and Virgil

MRS. KILPATRICK IS
W.M.U. DISTRICT CHM.

Mrs. W. S. Kilpatrick, of Andalusia, was re-elected District Chairman of W. M. U. at a meeting of Baptist women from Southeast Alabama counties held in the First Baptist Church of Enterprise Friday.

Other business transacted included reading of reports by six county superintendents and a report by Mrs. H. C. Fuller, of Headland, district leader of Young People's Work.

Speakers who appeared on the program of the all-day session were Rev. H. P. McCormick, returned missionary from Africa; J. L. Bishop, R. A. counselor for the Southern Union; Mrs. R. S. Marshall, state secretary, who discussed the completing of plans for this year and the making of plans for next year; Miss Mary Christian, of the Southern Union, whose topic was Community Missions.

A total of 167 delegates attended. Lunch was served at the church at noon, with all the societies of the county as hostess group.

Mr. Ja P. Boyd, of Auburn, was here Friday and Saturday looking after business interests.

McCain, superintendent of the Home, to whom checks and contributions should be sent, checks to be made out to the "Methodist Children's Home."

"White Christmas" campaign headquarters have been opened at 507 First National Building, Birmingham, with Mrs. O. H. Horton in charge, and any information with reference to this Children's Home, or to the campaign, will be cheerfully given, and supplies for carrying on the campaign in the churches will be sent out from here to all who may make a request for such material.

FULLER-BRAGG

The marriage of Miss Margie Fuller, Elba, and Mr. Sam Bragg, Jr., Elba, took place Tuesday night, Nov. 16, at 7:30 o'clock in Opp, at the home of Rev. Eiland, who performed the simple ring ceremony.

The bride wore a light blue suit with navy accessories.

Mr. Don Donaldson, of Samson, uncle of the bride, and Miss Louise Hutto, of Samson, were witnesses to the wedding.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fuller, of Elba.

After a short honeymoon with relatives the couple reside in Pensacola, Fla., where the bridegroom worked for a short time prior to his engagement.—Contributed.

Cpl. Felston Anderson, son of Mrs. J. S. Anderson, who spent last week with his mother and other relatives around Elba, left last Monday for Americus, Ga., where he will spend a few days with his brother, Elvin Anderson, and family, before returning to his assignment at Drew Field, Fla.

Mrs. Wesley Harris spent Monday in Troy visiting relatives and friends.

Leon Brooks, Bkr. 11c, with assignment at the Naval Training Station at Norfolk, Va., arrived yesterday for a visit with relatives and friends near Elba.

Wayland DuBoise, Seaman 21c, stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., has been spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parker and other Elba relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Rowe, of Dothan, were visitors to Elba Saturday.

The many friends of little Judy Farmer will be glad to learn that she is improving after a tonsil operation at Dothan last Thursday.

Mrs. J. V. Mays returned home Saturday night from a two weeks visit to friends and relatives in Birmingham.

Unspoiled

By R. H. WILKINSON

Associated Newspapers.

WNU Features.

ETHAN CHAIN wrote a novel which had unusual success, and the publishers of said novel invited the author to visit them in New York and be fed and discuss the prospects of a new book in the very near future.

When Ethan arrived at the offices of the Vaughn Publishing company he was presented to Ben Veazy, who was a sort of front man assigned the task of entertaining all visiting celebrities. Ben had an ingratiating smile, a suave, flattering manner, and a remarkable insight into human nature. He took one look at Ethan and decided that here was someone who needed special attention, lest some rival publishing house get their hooks on him before he had put his name to the dotted line of a contract.

Aloud Ben said: "Suppose before we go in to see Mr. Vaughn we get this business out of the way. Then we'll be free to enjoy ourselves."

"What business?" Ethan asked. "This contract for your next book. If you'll just sign here."

"If you don't mind," said Ethan earnestly, "I'd rather wait awhile. You see, several other publishers wrote to me and—"

"Of course! Of course!" boomed Ben. "Naturally other publishers would. Then he took Ben in to meet Mr. Vaughn, gave Mr. Vaughn a significant wink, and left them. Back in his office he called Freda Dean on the phone.

"Get over here, honey, but quick. It's an emergency job." At which Freda, dark and brown-eyed and altogether striking looking was sent to the office of the publisher. In Jake's place Ethan announced he was going back to Vermont.

opposite him, he told her in detail all about Ethan. "He's a real naïve as heck. So naïve, in fact, that he feels it his bounden duty to listen to the proposition of our brother competitors before he signs with us. Honey, in five minutes I'm going to introduce you. From that point forward, you take over, remembering that you're on our payroll."

Things worked out about as Ben had planned. He never doubted results when Freda was in the harness.

However, things were happening that Ben didn't know about. He wouldn't, in fact, have dreamed about it in his wildest state of mind. This fact was that Ethan and Freda were falling in love. Freda knew that Ben and all her friends would not believe her, so she didn't bother to tell them.

However, the first night he proposed, though she laughed merrily, she knew that the thing had happened, and to her.

"Why, Ethan, that's funny. Marry you? Leave this glorious New York and go up to the back woods of Vermont and bury myself for the rest of my days. Oh, Ethan!"

Ethan didn't propose again. That is, not until the night they sat in Jake's Place and he announced he was going back to his Vermont farm the next day.

"Tomorrow," Freda cried aghast. He nodded. "I've got to get back there. Of course you wouldn't understand about such things, having lived here in New York all your life, but with me, well—"

"Darling, I do understand!" she cried wildly. "I will marry you. I will go up to Vermont to live. Even if it kills me!"

Ethan stared at her for a moment, then he rose and led her outside and into a taxi. The next hour was all sort of vague to Freda, but at the end of it she knew she was married to Ethan. From somewhere he had procured a license and a minister and she was Mrs. Ethan Chain.

Then they were back in the same taxi and Ethan was giving an address in the upper eighties.

"But—but I thought we were going to Vermont!"

Ethan grinned at her broadly. "Why, shucks, honey, I don't live in Vermont. I've lived in New York all my life. I was up there last summer when I wrote to Vaughn and he just took it for granted it was my home because of the way I look, I guess." He laughed. "I let him love with you because I fell in love with you and I figured if you knew I lived in New York you'd never marry me, and I figured if I threatened to go back to Vermont I could precipitate matters. By the way, I signed the contract and sent a check to Vaughn today, so you're in the clear."

Buck Moves On

By RICHARD WILKINSON

Associated Newspapers.

WNU Features.

"WELL, Buck," Boss Killian said, "it looks like you ain't so smart as you thought you was."

Buck Jenner, tall, lean, untanned, looked levelly at the owner of the Bar 10 cattle spread. A month ago he had come here in response to an urgent plea by Killian to the Cattlemen's Association, boasting that within a fortnight he could rid the range of the rustlers who had been conducting profitable operations at the Bar 10's expense.

"I guess," he admitted, "I ain't got no room for argument, Mr. Killian. Still, I'd like another week at it. Give me one more week, at my own expense."

Boss Killian gestured elaborately. "What can I lose? Go ahead. If you fail, I dunno what I'll do. If you succeed, there's a thousand in it for you on the line."

Buck rode into the town of Sandscreek that evening and headed for the Sagebrush saloon. He had no definite plans in mind for the forthcoming week, and it occurred to him that brooding about the situation for an hour or two over a shot of red eye might at least temporarily ease his tense nerves.

He was holding his second one when someone tapped him on the shoulder. It was Luke Cross, the big foreman of the Bar 10, who was coming back and it occurred to him that brooding about the situation for an hour or two over a shot of red eye might at least temporarily ease his tense nerves.

"I'll see you," Buck said, "I'll see you tomorrow night on Bar 10 cattle down on the south range. Don't thank me. My outfit's been losing so much stuff the old man's ready to hand me my papers. Anything you can do will be appreciated as a personal favor. If you need any help, sing out."

"I won't," Buck set his glass down carefully. "But thanks anyhow, Luke. Have a drink?"

The next afternoon Buck selected nine of the Bar 10's best men and headed for the south range. Toward dusk they reached a likely camping ground, close by the cattle, and built a fire. One of them put water on to boil and began slicing bacon.

"Well keep guard in shifts of three," Buck told the cowboys. "At the first sign of anything wrong, cut loose with your six guns. Maybe there's nothing to this tip, but we can't afford to take chances. His voice sounded confident and authoritative, but that was far from how he felt. He was still puzzled and suspicious.

Just before midnight, with the moon hanging above the western horizon, the alarm came. The sharp report of a six-shooter cut the night silence. It was followed by another, and then another.

Buck sprang from his blankets, reaching for his smoke-pole, and the cowboys not on guard did likewise. In the dim light, Buck made out a group of bunched riders, heard, above the clattering of guns, the howling of cattle, and rumble of their hooves.

Seconds later the situation became apparent. Three rustlers had attempted to start the herd moving and had been discovered by the cowboys on guard. The trio were now cutting across some open country in full light.

Buck didn't like it. Why were the rustlers sticking to the open? Why were they cutting back and forth, pausing occasionally to attempt beating off pursuit when the odds were so great against them?

Presently the trio fed toward a butte. Buck and his riders, yelling and shooting, followed. The moment, however, that the butte had obscured them from view of the camp, he called a halt.

They returned quietly, bunched together. And the instant they rounded the butte an astonishing sight met their eyes. A half dozen riders were skillfully hazing the cattle off in the opposite direction.

"Come on!" Buck cried hoarsely. "Let's get 'em." He set spurs to his own mount, leading the chase. There was a new grimace in his face, for he had perceived among those half dozen riders one that was big and tall, a familiar figure in every detail.

The rustlers, taken completely by surprise, were unprepared. They turned when the alarm was finally sounded, but too late. Between them and safety was the slowly moving herd of cattle.

Six guns blazed and roared. Men cursed and yelled. Above it all, adding more confusion, was the thunder of a thousand hooves of cattle.

Buck singled out the tall form of Luke Cross and rode directly at him. "Well, Luke, the jig's up. You got one chance, and that is to get me afore I get you."

Luke grabbed at the one chance, but his shot went wild. He slumped in his saddle, then tumbled to the ground, clutching at his chest where Buck's bullet had torn a gaping hole.

Boss Killian slammed a hand on his desk. "P-r-ck, I owe you an apology. You did it and made a complete job. How about hanging around here as foreman of the Bar 10?"

Buck shook his head, smiling now. "Thanks, Boss, but it looks to me like things would be pretty tame in this vicinity from now on. I crave excitement, so I reckon I'll be taking my thousand bucks and movin' on."

The November meeting of the Elba Jr. Music Club was held in the home of Mrs. J. C. Dixon, with Martha Ann Dixon and Carolyn English as joint hostesses. The president, Katherine Mullins, presided over the business session. The roll call was answered with tempo term.

The subject was, "The Trend of Music In England." Claudene Fleming, the program leader, introduced the following program:

Early Music In England, Claudene Fleming; Solo (Annie Laurie), Joe Ann Clark; Opera In England, Peggy Blue; Piano Solo, Ann Dunaway; The Life of Henry Purcell, Gennette Fleming.

After the program a delightful salad plate was served.

The October meeting of the Music Club in the home of Mrs. L. P. Mullins, with Katherine Mullins and Nona Bagwell as joint hostesses. The Opera was the subject of the meeting. The hostesses, assisted by Patsy Mullins, served a delectable plate.

MT. GILEAD CLUB MET

Mt. Gilead club women met Friday, Nov. 5, with Mrs. Eddie Johnson. The lesson was on Toy Making. Miss Reddick gave an interesting demonstration at the noon hour. We spread our lunch together.

Everyone reported an enjoyable time. We adjourned to meet in December with Mrs. H. H. Collins.

Mrs. W. C. Hataway.
